

A photograph of a waterfront promenade. In the foreground, a person wearing a yellow jacket and dark pants is sitting on a metal bench, looking out over the water. To the left of the bench, there is an orange bucket and some coiled metal pipes. The ground is a light-colored concrete or paved surface. A metal railing runs along the edge of the promenade, with a tall utility pole standing in the middle ground. The background shows a large body of water reflecting the sun, with buildings and hills visible in the distance under a clear blue sky.

CONCEPTUAL PLAN FOR A Sunset Park Greenway

JUNE 2008

prepared for the United Puerto Rican Organization of Sunset Park

by the Pratt Center for Community Development

TABLE OF CONTENTS

A small road at the Brooklyn Army Terminal leading to the 58th Street pier, currently the only publicly accessible area on the Sunset Park waterfront.

I. FOREWORD & ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	3
II. INTRODUCTION	4
III. PLANNING PRINCIPLES	5
IV. EXISTING CONDITIONS	13
V. CONCEPTUAL PLAN	29
VI. IMPLEMENTATION STRATEGY	47
VII. APPENDIX	52